

Recent Posts

- The Meatrix II: Revolting
- Memefest 2006
- Silence on Video
- Heck of a Job? \(Part II\)
- Design for Peace
- Creative Commons Explained
- Heck of a Job? \(Part I\)
- The Lonely Station: Billboard Busting in Australia
- Unplugging Clear Channel
- Galloway and Hitchens Head-to-Head

More Articles >>

RSS | What is RSS?

Why Delocate?

July 26, 2005

For years, indy cafés have been dropping like flies under the onslaught of aggressive corporate coffee chains. But if Delocator.net has anything to say about it, the indies are going to be making a startling comeback real soon.

Just type in a United States zip code and you'll be greeted with a run-down of every independently-owned coffee shop within five miles. And if you doubt the urgency of supporting these local businesses, you'll also be shown every Starbucks location in the same radius — trust us, it's not a pretty sight.

Here's the really exciting part: delocating is about much more than just coffee. The creators of Delocator.net encourage visitors to download the code behind the site, then to customize it for delocating in other countries and other retail sectors — clothing, food service, housewares, you name it.